ACB PRESIDENT'S UPDATE: BEGINNING RESTORATION

Our ultimate goal as the Alumni Corporation Board (ACB) remains simple: to provide a safe and desirable home for our undergraduate brothers. Thanks to the time, effort, and generosity of so many alumni, we've made meaningful strides—and we're excited to keep that momentum going.

THE BASEMENT SITUATION

Right now, our short-term focus is on the basement. It's currently an unfinished, unusable space. Cracks in the foundation have led to flooding and standing water, which has raised concerns about potential mold behind the walls. There's no flooring—just bare concrete—and overall, the space is far from the standard we want for our chapter house.

The plan is already in motion. The undergrads will soon open a 2-foot section around the basement perimeter so Premier Basement Systems can assess the damage and provide a solution. Initial recommendations include sealing the foundation and installing a sump pump to prevent future water issues.

MAKING THE SPACE LIVABLE AGAIN

If resources allow, we'll begin the repairs as soon as possible. Once the basement is dry and secure, the next step will be installing flooring, repairing drywall, and making it a usable, welcoming part of the house again—ideally before the fall semester begins.

To help with finishing touches, we're planning a summer alumni work party. More details will be shared soon, but we hope you'll consider joining us. It's a great chance to give back with your time, reconnect with brothers, and leave a lasting impact.

LOOKING AHEAD

We're also looking for a Facility Director—someone who can help oversee maintenance and keep the house running smoothly. It's a key role, and you'd have the full support of the ACB, CCAB, and Eboard behind you. If you or someone you know might be interested, please reach out.

THANK YOU AND ONGOING SUPPORT

We're incredibly grateful for the time, donations, and encouragement from so many alumni. While fundraising efforts continue, we want to emphasize just how much your past and present support has meant—and continues to mean—to the active chapter.

With continued collaboration, we're confident the chapter house will keep getting better. Thank you for being part of that journey.

JOHN CARPENTER

Some individuals leave a lasting impact wherever they go - John Carpenter is one of those people. From the moment he joined Delta Sigma Phi at the University of Idaho in 1993, it was clear that he was going to make a difference. Whether it was his leadership within the fraternity, academic excellence, athletic achievements, or simply the ability to bring people together, John's presence helped shape the Gamma Iota chapter and the lives of those around him.

A BROTHERHOOD THAT SHAPED A LEADER

John's Delta Sig journey began in the fall of 1993 when he was living in Gault Hall and became a snap pledge. He quickly embraced fraternity life, moving into the house by the start of spring semester 1994. While John was known for being academically driven, he was also known for his sense of humor, his ability to find fun in random situations, and his ability to connect with others.

His choice of major, Molecular Biology and Biochemistry with a minor in Spanish, suggested that he would spend most of his time buried in textbooks. But if you knew John, you knew that wasn't the case. While he and other brothers made a habit of going to the library most nights, those study sessions usually turned into something else entirely, hanging out with friends, pulling pranks, or flirting with Trena Britven, who would later become his wife. Despite his tendency to socialize rather than study, John somehow managed to maintain near-perfect grades. Looking back, one would likely credit a little bit of natural ability, a lot of hard work, and the motivation that came from being surrounded by great people. He had, and still has, a genuine curiosity for science and a drive to succeed, even if he never took himself too seriously.

Beyond academics, John was a beneficial chapter athlete. In 1995, he was named the chapter's Most Valuable Athlete, and he played a role in leading Delta Sigma Phi to four consecutive campus intramural championships. He was a force in ultimate frisbee, flag football, softball, and racquetball among other sports. But more than the intramural wins, it was the camaraderie that mattered most. Whether it was a pick-up game in the yard, a house-wide snowball fight, sorority raids, or just hanging out with brothers until the early hours of the morning, John helped create the kind of memories that still bring a smile to his brothers' faces decades later.

In 1995, John served as Rush Chairman alongside brother Adam Phillips, leading a highly successful recruitment effort that resulted in a 33-man pledge class—the largest on campus that year, that filled both the chapter house and The Perch annex next door. His ability to attract and inspire new members helped ensure that the house remained strong and filled with the very best men on campus.

His leadership continued as he represented Delta Sigma Phi at the 1995 National Convention along with brothers Drake, Jones, Thompson and legendary ACB members Charles Hudson and Charles Bartell. In 1996, Carpenter attended the College of Engineered Leadership (now called Leadership Institute). He later took on the roles of Chapter Treasurer and Chapter President. His presidency was a critical time for the house, as Delta Sigma Phi faced probation due to alcohol-related incidents from prior years. With a steady hand and a strategic approach, John successfully worked with the university administration to remove the fraternity from probation ahead of schedule, ensuring that the house remained strong, respected, and able to continue recruiting top-tier members.

his college years. Every year, he and brother Matt Williamson take their families on vacation together, demonstrating that the bonds of brotherhood formed in college can truly last a lifetime. When he's not working, John enjoys skiing and snowboarding in the winter and wake surfing and other water sports in the summer. His passion for adventure and the outdoors reflects the same energy and enthusiasm he brought to his fraternity days.

A PATH TO MEDICINE AND BEYOND

While deeply involved in the fraternity, John was also preparing for his future. He conducted undergraduate laboratory research, gaining experience that helped him secure acceptance into medical school at the University of Washington through the highly competitive WWAMI program. By the time he graduated in 1998, John had already built a legacy at U of I—one that earned him some of the university's highest honors, including: Gamma Iota Man of the Year (1995), Greek Man of the Year (1996), Homecoming King (1996), Alumni Association Award for Excellence (1997) and Theophilus Award for Most Outstanding Graduating Senior (1998).

After graduation, John married Trena, and together they embarked on a journey across the country as he pursued his medical career. From Spokane to Tucson to Cleveland and finally back to the Seattle area, he completed extensive training in gastrointestinal pathology, a highly specialized field of medicine. His expertise in this area has made him one of the leading professionals in the field, and he has served as director of multiple high-complexity laboratories, helping countless patients through his role in diagnostic medicine.

In addition to his traditional medical career, John's entrepreneurial spirit led him to found a business specializing in cryopreservation of gamete cells, which play a critical role in assisted reproductive medicine. His ability to combine scientific expertise with business innovation has allowed him to make an impact beyond traditional medicine, expanding his influence into biotechnology and reproductive health.

Despite a demanding career, John remains deeply committed to his friends and family. He and Trena have two sons in high school, and he has stayed closely connected to those who shaped

A TRUE DELTA SIG FOR LIFE

More than 30 years after he first stepped into the Delta Sigma Phi house, John Carpenter continues to embody the values of leadership, excellence, and brotherhood. His journey from a fun-loving, high-achieving college student to a nationally recognized medical expert and entrepreneur is a testament to what dedication, intelligence, and strong personal connections can accomplish.

But for those who knew him best, John's legacy isn't just about his awards, his academic success, or his professional achievements. It's about the parties in The Pub, the intramural championships, the rush weeks recruiting the best pledge classes on campus, and the unbreakable bonds of brotherhood that remain just as strong today as they were three decades ago. John Carpenter is not just a Gamma Iota success story, he is a shining example of what it means to be a Delta Sig for life. Brother Carpenter has also given back by financially supporting the chapter building fund, HQ's Founders Day Campaign, a printed Gamma Eye newsletter, multiple undergrad sponsorships to attend Bike to Boise dinners and the 70th Anniversary celebration.

When asked what advice he has for the undergraduates, Carpenter noted "College is one of the only times in life when your main job is to learn, so take full advantage of it, both in and out of the classroom. Build real friendships, say yes to opportunities that push you out of your comfort zone, and learn how to fail without quitting. Don't stress too much about having everything figured out. None of us really do, we just get better at faking it. Life only gets better if you keep showing up, working hard, and staying curious."

GENTLEMEN

B2B 2025

In the early hours of April 4th, Gamma Iota undergrads caught the early sunrise to get on the road for the 62nd annual Bike to Boise. Our day started with two strong-willed members making the full trip to our first stop of the day, a 34 mile trip to Lewiston, Idaho. Our journey was met with wonderful weather and with a pleasant surprise from our Queen of The Nile as she joined us and contributed to the miles on the bike. Alumni support was present on our ride as well as we would pass alumni on the side of the road who cheered us on, and provided us with kind generosities such as food and water. Our first day was concluded by reaching our campsite, Hazard Creek, by New Meadows, Idaho. The campsite was situated a few miles off the road and is on the shore of a river. Although the weather was cold, the boys had a wonderful time where stories were both told and made.

Our path was clear and the weather cooperative as we headed towards our final stops of the senior ride down the old Whitebird roads, and lastly the steps of the Capitol. Family and friends alike greeted our undergrads and the spirit was prominent, the journey had come to a conclusion and we had another successful bike ride. Dinner was shortly after our arrival where the room was filled with over 50 alumni and the undergraduates. This year our chapter decided to support the Redside Foundation, a non-profit which supports the mental health of nature guides in Idaho, Montana, Wyoming, and Colorado. This foundation is nestled close to our hearts due to the connection we share through the unfortunate passing of brother Telly Evans PC '94. Representatives from the foundation were kind and gave their time to join our dinner and speak a few words in gratitude. The dinner formalities ended with an inspiring speech from chapter president Andrew Wood who spoke on the current condition of the chapter. The night brought only more connections and memories after the dinner as the alumni and undergraduates spent the remainder of the night in Boise. 2025 saw Delta Sigs proudly complete another annual tradition, one that truly inspires us all and will continue to be a part of Delta Sigma Phi Gamma Iota culture, and community for many years to come.

SHAPING NEW MEN

This has been a challenging but fun semester as I completed my first half of being the 2025 pledge educator. I got to meet many pnm's and get close to our new three members. I believe that this semester was a good warm up for me and has prepared me for the fall pledge class of 2025. Starting off the spring semester we had two pledges that were already to go through the system. They were not typical freshmen and were in fact older than many of the first and second years in the house. This contributed a lot to the way I presented myself and the material as I knew that I was talking to experienced college students. I made sure to address their maturity but also give them the same expectations as I would with any other freshman or new member. I think it is very important that the new members see themselves being treated equally through their new member process as it makes them feel more connected as a pledge class. The two new members, Jake and Gunner, did well with tests and getting along with brothers in the house, but really struggled with memorization, especially with the preamble. Luckily, some brothers like Ash took on the role of helping them memorize with practice and various devices. Jake and Gunner were very new to Greek life and didn't know any of the other fraternities and sororities, this was also a challenge for them to remember all the houses and their letters, but they practiced hard and got them down. The only bump we had in the process was when Jake decided to leave the house and the process in the middle of March due to personal reasons, so during the end of march going into initiation it was just Gunner. I was worried about his morale after Jake left, but he had a great attitude and was still very much in tune with the process. We went into initiation week, and he was at the house every day. For initiation week I tried to plan house activities like a movie night, nerf wars, and barbecues. They weren't as big as brotherhoods, but Gunner had a lot of fun and got closer with the brothers. I was proud of him when he was initiated as he had the right mindset and excitement to face the unknown. He was very involved in Bike to Boise and our annual campout, which proves his tenacity and dedication to the house. I felt very accomplished with Gunner and am excited to try to have the same or even better process with our three new pledges. Samyuk,

Mason, and Luis are three promising young men who have already showed a lot of respect and curiosity about the house. They signed their bids at the beginning of April. Since April is our busiest month and I want the new members to have a full seven-week process, we decided to start their new member process in the fall of 2025 along with the new pledge class. This was they can experience their new member process with less distractions and a bigger group. I had doubts that they would stay dedicated to the house over the summer, but they were eased when I saw how much they still cared about the house when summer started. We are all super thrilled for this fall semester and the new brothers we will meet.

YEARS OF GAMMA IOTA

A TIMELESS BOND: GAMMA IOTA AT 75

Over 100 brothers, spanning decades of initiation, converged in Moscow to commemorate the 75th anniversary of the Gamma Iota Chapter of Delta Sigma Phi. The milestone celebration brought together alumni from across the Northwest and beyond, a testament to the enduring bonds forged within the chapter at the University of Idaho.

The weekend kicked off on Friday with an informal reception, warmly welcoming those who had traveled near and far. Laughter and stories filled the Vandal Ballroom as brothers reconnected and reminisced. Saturday marked the anniversary's main events. The day began with an open house at the chapter facility, allowing alumni to tour the house and relive their college days and enjoy a BBQ.

The evening culminated in a formal reception and banquet which included reflections from various speakers, highlighting the chapter's rich history and its impact on the lives of its members. A poignant moment was the Bond Eternal Roll Call, honoring brothers who have entered the bond eternal since our founding. An incredible tribute put together by Tony Agenbraad PC '10.

A highlight of the evening was the unveiling of the Gamma Iota Chapter Facility Restoration & Refurbishment Plan. Building upon the improvements made between 2016 and 2019, this ambitious multi-phase initiative outlines a comprehensive strategy to further enhance the chapter's living spaces and ensure a safe and healthy environment for current and future members. The plan addresses critical infrastructure needs, interior modernizations, and exterior improvements, all aimed at preserving a cherished symbol of Gamma Iota brotherhood. A copy of this highly detailed and researched plan is available by email request to Michael Bivens at mikebiv95@gmail.com a discussion on the future of the chapter. An ACB & CCAB planning meeting also took place, open to all alumni interested in actively shaping Gamma Iota's next chapter.

The 75th Anniversary celebration was a resounding success, a powerful reminder of the enduring spirit of brotherhood that defines the Gamma Iota Chapter of Delta Sigma Phi. The strong turnout and the enthusiastic response to the facility restoration plan signal a bright future for the chapter as it looks forward to its centennial and beyond.

FINANCES AND FORWARD

LEGACY OF BROTHERS: 75 YEARS AND RISING AS LEADERS

This year has been nothing short of transformational for our Delta Sigma Phi chapter. From some of the best recruitment in the last few years and much academic progress from the previous semesters to renewed pride in our chapter house and a milestone anniversary celebration, we have not only met expectations — we've far exceeded them. Through unity, determination, and an unwavering commitment to our values, our chapter is thriving like never before.

Our recent recruitment efforts have been a powerful reminder of what makes Delta Sigma Phi special. We didn't just bring in numbers — we welcomed future leaders, dedicated brothers, and men of character into our ranks. Our chapter grew not just in size, but in strength. The newest members bring fresh energy, ideas, and enthusiasm, and they've already begun contributing to the positive momentum that's driving us forward. Watching these new brothers find their place has reaffirmed the timeless truth: when you lead with authenticity and purpose, people are drawn to it.

Our chapter house is more than just walls and windows — it's a symbol of who we are. This year, we've taken that symbolism to heart, putting in the work to keep our home not just clean and functional, but vibrant and full of life. From upgraded spaces to everyday maintenance, our commitment to house upkeep reflects a deeper pride in our brotherhood. It's a place where memories are made, friendships are forged, and traditions are carried on — and it looks better than ever.

This year, our chapter proudly supported The Redside Foundation, a nonprofit dedicated to the well-being of outdoor professionals — and one with special meaning to us. The foundation was started due to Delta Sigma Phi brother, Telly Evans (Pledge Class '94), whose legacy continues to inspire our service. Through fundraising events, outreach, and strong chapter participation, we raised over $4,000 to support their mission. It was a powerful reminder of how brotherhood can create lasting impact beyond campus.

All of these achievements were fittingly crowned by a historic celebration — the 75th anniversary of our chapter. The turnout was overwhelming, the energy electric. Alumni from every generation returned home, sharing stories and wisdom that reminded us all of the unbreakable bond that defines Delta Sig. It was a celebration of where we've been — and a powerful inspiration for where we're headed.

As we carry this momentum into the future, we are reminded of the extraordinary legacy we are part of — and the responsibility we hold to leave it better than we found it. Delta Sigma Phi isn't just something we join — it's something we build, together

SENSE DIRECTION REPORT

My name is Drew Bowman, I am from Eugene OR studying Geographic Information Systems and the current Treasurer for the Gamma Iota chapter. Currently, our finances are stable and here are some things to note for the fellow brothers past and present. First when I became Treasurer there were many issues with our banks, I got a bank statement my first week saying that we had over 60K in our old Umpqua bank account, even though currently we're with US bank. US Bank has also been giving us issues, especially with their horrible savings account. Going into this summer, the chapter will transition to a new account. This will give us as undergrads more control over our bills and won't have the ACB sharing an account with us.

Along with the transition to the new bank account, my summer project will be to transition our dues' collection from Greek bill to Bill Highway. This is required for every Delta Sigma Phi chapter in the country and allows all the budgeting and finances to go directly to where they need to go. All nationals dues will be paid directly by the members and all dues will be directly sent to our new bank account. I have a couple of ideas for the budget going into Fall 2025. For one, we should create a Sorority Philanthropy budget to be more involved on campus without us having to collect pitches from brothers in order to participate. Next, we should add an intramural budget along the same intentions, along with these additions our dues should increase slightly going into 2025.

While we have been doing a great job at bringing in new members and this will decrease our dues going into the future Treasurer's role, everything is getting expensive nowadays so for the time being our dues will probably increase from 3,100 to 3,250. Since we have around 30 members, this will bring in an additional 4,500 for any future bills and to create a safety net for any inevitable increases in bills. Lastly, I'm going to finally create a transition paper for future Treasurers, so that they understand fully what their responsibilities are, this includes most importantly, filing the taxes for our chapter. While this seems like a big ask, it's actually rather simple and only takes a few minutes. After we get our back taxes filled out, it should be rather easy. Other than that, we're doing pretty good in terms of our finances.
